The Carmel Pine Cone

VOL. 56, No. 5 PRICE 15¢ PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA 20 pages JANUARY 29, 1970

UNIQUE OVERPASS — The Rainbow Bridge over Bixby Creek lays claim to being one of the highest single span arch bridges in the world. It is 714 feet long and 285 feet above the sea inlet which it spans. The graceful rings of the spandrel arch bow high above the canyon mouth, carrying the deck on the bridge between the concrete abutments that anchor it on each side. In 1938, the first sea otters were spotted after it was believed the animals were extinct due to excessive killing for their fur. Until the Coast Highway 1 between Carmel and San Simeon was completed, wildlife in the region remained unmolested, and the protected inlets and inaccessible terrain provided a sanctuary for the sea otter. Pine Cone photographer Roger Fremier caught the setting sun shedding a cathedral-like light filtering through ominous clouds, framing the graceful bridge spanning Bixby Creek.

CBA prexy Jim Cost says 69 sales figures good

James Peter Cost, president of the Carmel Business Association, refuted poor-mouth rumors that local business was generally down by announcing that sales figures for fiscal year 1968-69 are way up, and have been better each year since 1962.

The Carmel painter and gallery owner backed up his statement with statistics from his personal research, presented in a newsletter to CBA members.

Before and after Christmas, Cost surveyed a number of shops, observing and asking questions. He followed this with a visit to City Hall.

"I looked at figures, graphs, reports and statements," he continued, "all neat, pure and 100 percent free of rumors and emotions."

He based his study on sales tax figures. As not all items are taxable, actual sales, totals would be considerably higher.

The June-to-June fiscal year of 1961-62 showed taxes returned to Carmel as $174,082, against a fiscal 1968069 revenue of $248,260. 1963-64 represented the highest percentage increase, 9.25 percent over the preceding year, or $196,415 against $179,847. The rate of increase reached a low of 0.13 percent in 1967-68, but rose 3.03 percent the following 12 months, ended last June.

While the annual business trend is steadily up, Mr. Cost pointed out wide seasoal sales fluctuations. Quarterly tax repayments show that the three months ending in March are the lowest, September the hightest, with December and June in second and third place. 1968 revenues varied from $52,000 in March to $74,000 in September.

Flagging Christmas trade plus many merchants reporting that the days after the holidays as the biggest of the year, led the CBA head to report:

"The information I received supports the unlikely thesis that the Christmas shopping season in Carmel starts on Dec. 26 and continues throughout the year until Thanksgiving, then comes to a screeching halt."

Business licenses in Carmel total 435, Cost said, 374 of them members of CBA, both all-time highs. Compared to 1968 when 30 new businesses opened, 26 opened in the first seven months of the current fiscal year.

PINE CONE DAY – As a promotion gimmick for the Monterey Bicentennial, this San Francisco Cable Car, loaded with a bevy of local lovelies, spent last weekend touring Monterey, with a once-a-day trip to Carmel and the Carmel Mission. The tours plugged the "Carnes Tolendas" coming up on Feb. 7 and 8. Friday the Cable Car was sponsored by the Pine Cone, and Wayne Everton, general manager, had words with the costumed tour conductors before the start of the day.

'The Crucible,' tale of 17th century witchcraft is next for Golden Bough Players

The Golden Bough Players, under the direction of Michael Keller, are in final rehearsals for Arthur Miller's dramatic play, "The Crucible," which is scheduled to open at the Circle Theatre on Friday, Feb. 6.

It promises to be a major event of the 1970 theatre season, as produced by the Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula.

"The Crucible" is a drama about the Puritan purge of witch-craft in Old Salem in 1692, depicting one of the most tragic chapters in American history.

In dramatizing the Salem witch hunts at the end of the 17th century, Miller explores the roots of intolerance and mass hysteria. A few girls, fettered by a rigid Puritan moral code, seek an outlet in secret dances at night in the woods.

Discovered, they manage to elude punishment by declaring themselves victims of the Devil and by ecstatically accusing several harmless women of witchcraft. The whole community is caught in a frenzy. Envy, greed, and superstition rule.

The Devil's supposed human assistants are blamed for every mishap, be it the miscarriage of a woman, or the death of a pig.

The central plot concerns John Proctor, a forthright farmer, his wife Elizabeth, and Abigail, the ringleader of the girls. Abigail, in love with Proctor, tries to eliminate Elizabeth by declaring her a witch.

The playwright, through dramatic and brilliant writing, creates a most terrifying and thrilling moment in the theatre, when Proctor is caught in a monstrous web of bigotry and deciet. Refusing to sign a false confession, he finds himself also accused, imprisoned and finally condemned to hanging on Gallows Hill.

Intricate lighting plots for the Circle stage are being specifically designed for this production by Richard Stockton. Authentic severe New England Puritan costuming is being researched and executed by Kay Walter.

Master carpenter Harry Graham is constructing the stark set from the original design of Michael Keller and Jim Lapidus. Roy Baxter is production stage manager, with Scott Conway as his assistant, and Johnny Clark as sound technician.

"The Crucible" will play weekends through March 14 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., and on Sundays one hour earlier at 7:30 p.m.

A number of group discount books have already been reserved, so it would be advisable to check with the box office well in advance of the date you plan to attend.

Children's Dental Health Week

Brush, Brush, Brush...

As it announced the forthcoming annual observance of National Children's Dental Health Week from Feb. 1 through 7, the California Dental Association issued a reminder that dental decay is mankind's most widespread health problem.

While estimating that over 90 per cent of the world's population has some degree of tooth decay, the CDA pointed out that the most dental trouble can be prevented through regular care and the use of modern techniques.

National Children's Dental Health Week was founded 22 years ago with the express purpose of calling attention to the importance of establishing good dental habits early – and maintaining them through life. Vital first steps toward assuring healthy teeth are proper diet and cleanliness.

To begin with, says the CDA, most of us eat far too many sweets – and sugars activate the bacteria always present in the mouth to form decay-causing acids. Cutting down on sugar intake goes far toward preventing decay. And forming a habit of careful brushing immediately after eating further insures a healthy mouth.

One of today's most effective weapons against decay (dental caries) is fluoridation, which thousands of studies have confirmed prevents up to 60 per cent of decay.

The California Dental Association urges regular visits to your dentist. Only he can detect and treat any beginning decay before it becomes a serious threat to your dental health – important to you, and essential to your child's continuing dental well-being and "Smile Power," the theme of this year's National Children's Dental Health Week.

Museums and American culture

by Emily Brown

The financial plight of the Carmel Museum of Art – on whose acquisition by the city the voters may decide April 4 – reflects a national trend that could lead to a nation entirely without these cornerstones of cultural achievement.

Money is only one of the problems for American museums. Another trouble area is an influential "youth cult," by no means all young people, which believes that only "now" art is great art, and who have no regard for the painting of earlier periods.

On the horizon is a third threat, tax reform legislation which would allow a donor of works of art to museums only the original price of the works as a tax deduction, not their current market value. Thus a potential donor is ahead if he sells his art, takes a profit and pays the tax on the profit.

The bill proposing the closing of this "loophole" has passed the House or Representatives, and will soon reach the Senate.

Museums were unknown to earlier cutlures. The great art collections of the Medicis and other Renaissance families were private. They were commissioned contemporary works, collected for their beauty, not their age, historical significance or the fame of the artists' names.

Most Europeans museums are government owned and supported. Napoleon originated the idea by housing looted treasures in the Louvre Palace.

The Carmel Museum of Art is a repository of Carmel's artistic past, the foundation on which the present was built. This artistic present is evident in Village galleries numbering between 40 and 50. In a few years or decades, some of these works will be part of Carmel's historic past.

Carmel voters can take the facts to the polls with them, along with the thought that Carmel's future may be lessened by the loss of its Carmel Museum of Art.

PADRE SPORTS

By Hal Gann

It's a good thing local sports fans were concentrating on the Crosby, because last weekend Carmel High's three basketball teams won only one of six contests.

The single conquest was notched by the Freshman team, winning over King City, 34-28, Saturday night in a tilt away from home, Jerry Argust accounting for exactly half of the Padre Points, with 14.

King City's varsity drubbed Carmel, 71-60, and the Mustang JV waltzed to a 68-28 conquest.

Last Friday night at home, Carmel bowed to Holy Cross in all three outings, 52-64 with the Varsity; 40-55, JV's, and 35-49 in the Freshman game.

(Next Padre Broadcast is tonight (Friday), live and direct at 8:05 over KRSA-FM, 100.7, when a rugged, sharp-shooting Hollister team comes to Carmel.

Local varsity foward Jeff Canepa is beginning to hit well on his one-hand jump shot from outside, as he registered 31 points for both games.

Mark Spindler continues to be effective on defense, while grabbing his share of rebounds and points, with a two game total of 23. The Padre pivot man, Pete Shaw (6-4), who replaces the Magnificent Bruce Winkler from last year's championship team, is getting more aggressiveness on the boards, learning to anticipate the missfires better. Shaw tallied 20 in the two-game series.

Carmel, Friday night, in an all-out attempt to win, used only seven performers, including Jim Conlan – whose sharp-shooting on last year's Junior Varsity team hasn't found its mark with the varsity yet this year – and Ward Gillete. This means the team was quite down going up against King City after the long trip down there the next night.

The Padres will have a tough time against the Haybalers tonight, as the Hollister team is strong with their 6-5 center Boyd and the deadly shooting of Ottmar and Yuste.

IT'S ALL HIS — This is a man responsibile for the 29th edition of the Clambake, golfdom's most frantic tournament. Bing Crosby, an ardent golfer, once usedto compete in the tourney, but lately has devoted himself to assuring it runs smoothly. The Crosby Clambake has donated several million dollars to youth activities, ranging from scholarships to Bingmobiles to youth centers.

AGONIZING HOUR — Pro golfer Jack Nicklaus waits on the porch of the Del Monte Lodge near the 18th at Pebble Beach after posting a sizzling 65 for Sunday's final round of the Crosby. He finished the 72 holes with a 279, nine strokes under par, just one stroke not-good-enough to beat Bert Yancey's 10-under, 278 round. Nicklaus finished nearly an hour ahead of Yancey, and spent the time thinking of his own thoughts on the balcony. Nicklaus could find solace in one fact. His prize money, $14,300, made him the third man in the history of the game to win more than a million dollars. Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper preceded him.

UNHAPPY ARNIE — Arnold Palmer, after winning two tournaments to start himself on the comeback trail, came in with a total 292 strokes in the 1970 edition of the Crosby Pro-Am, and is obviously quite dissatisfied with his performance. The $327 he collected for his finish will do little to cheer him up. And yet, until he holed out on the 18th, Palmer's faithful followers — "Arnie's Army" — stuck with him.

THE WINNER!! — Bert Yancey, who plays out of Pompano Beach, Fla., receives the congratulations of Jack Nicklaus, left, in the mob that surrounded the 18th green after Yancey tapped in a six inch putt to take the 29th Clambake with a 10 under par. Yancey and his amateur partner, singer Andy Williams, failed to make the cut after 54 holes, and for the first time in the history of the Crosby, a professional won the tournament without his amateur partner.

OOPS, MISSED!! — Singer Andy Williams, amateur partner of Crosby winner Bert Yancey appears to have missed his tee shot completely. But not so, of course. Although he and Yancey didn't make the Pro-Am cut by one stroke, golfers of the caliber of Andy Williams don't miss tee shots. He just took a couple of practice swings.

HOMETOWN FAVORITE — Popular favorite with a record crowd that attended the 1970 Crosby was Clint Eastwood, a local resident who, unfortunately, didn't make the Pro-Am cut.

NEITHER RAIN NOR SLEET NOR SNOW NOR MUD — Everybody, but absolutely everybody, goes to the Crosby Clambake. Despite almost ankle-deep mud, a leftover from two days of high winds and driving rains, these two brave mothers push strollers, loaded, along the path beside the 18th fairway at Pebble Beach. The youngster in the lead perambulater seems to be keeping a way eye on the oncoming terrain.

Around & about Spyglass Hill

Mrs. Bob Newhart braved the winds at Spyglass to accompany her husband during his seventh year of play at the Crosby Tournament.

"I love it, I really do," she exclaimed. "Every year we come back and have such a good time."

When asked about her husband's chances she replied, "Not too good. He's not burning up the course."

The Bob Newharts attended the Clambake for the fun of it, though and enjoyed the good company and beauty of their surroundings as well s the competition itself.

Mrs. James Peter Cost, also making the rounds at Spyglass, explained that she and her husband were following the game of their favorite golfer Johnny Potts.

"Johnny Potts is a collector of my husband's work and a close friend of orus," she explained. "Every year when he comes out here with his wife and family we enjoy seeing how he is progressing."

Back in the Spyglass Clubhouse, golf enthusiasts enjoyed lunch and talked over the day's events.

Bill Murray, a Peninsula resident since October, commented, "I think this tournament is great for the community. It really helps things out during what otherwise would be a dead time fo the season. It's wonderful to see people come down and renew friendships that would otherwise be lost."

Frank Mead, a Pebble Beach resident of the past twelve years advised golfers to "relax, pivot and swing."

Another Pebble Beach golfing fan, Claude Boles and his wife Irene were also lunching in the Spyglass dining room. Claude explained, "I'm just eating and drinking my way through the tournament."

His wife added that both she and her husband golf and both enjoy it.

Also dining in the clubhouse were the John L. Sullivans from Yuma City who have been coming down for the Clambake since 1948.

Premier show of new fabrics at San Carlos

Grandma would never have believed that women would someday be wearing clothing derived from coal, air, water and petroleum. But the fact is that women today are flocking to fabrics made from just these materials in blouses, dresses, suits, coats and almost everything else they wear and much of what they use to furnish and decorate their homes.

Leading the field of these man-made wonder fabrics are today's fabulous polyesters, which are becoming the overnight rage of both home sewers and leading clothing manufacturers around the world.

Area residents will have an opportunity to see an unusually wide range of these fantastic fabrics at the International Yardage Fair's 1970 Premier Showing at the San Carlos Hotel in Monterey on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 4 and 5. Featured at the 2-day Fair, which runs from 10 a.m. til 10 p.m. each day, there will be thousands of yards of polyester knits, crepes, embroidered, pleated, and suitings in a wide variet of weights, patterns, and colors.

Many of the polyester fabrics will be available in 60-inch widths, making only a yard and a half necessary for a dress. In addition to American made polyesters, visitors will see varieties from a number of fabric-making countries throughout the world. All will offer the sought-after qualities that make polyesters a top favorite of home sewers — wrinkle and stretch resistance, no ironing, long-wear, machine wash and dry-ability, fade and run-proof colors, and non-raveling qualities.

According to Fair producer Pat Beaubelle, "International Yardage Fair is now presenting the most complete collection of polyesters that most people will ever have an opportunity to see in one location. And what will be of special interest to the home sewer, all are priced at a fraction of the usual retail cost."

Show and sale hours for the two-day Fair at the San Carlos Hotel are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. both days.

Package Tours

Don't be surprised next time you hear two friends discussing their vacations, if you find that they went to the same place, stayed at the same hotel, and saw just about the same things – yet one spent maybe 25% less than the other.

Frugality? Not necessarily. The man who saved money probably took a "package"tour.

More Americans than ever before will be buying package tours this year, for places like New York, Ft. Lauderdale and Hawaii. Yet few people know all they should about "packages" – what they are, how much they cost and how to be selective in buying them.

What is a package tour? Basically it's a combination deal. You pay one sum, in advance, to cover the cost of hotel, sight-seeing and other services in the city or resort you're going to visit. Invariably this price is less than the total you pay if you booked all these things separately.

This fixed price feature, along with convenience, is the reason many people prefer a package: even before they leave home, they know to the dollar what certain expenses will be. Moreover, since packages are sold through most travel agents, confirmed reservations are assured practically from the moment the package is booked.

Perhaps the most desirable feature of a package, however, is its flexibility. The package covers the cost of essentials, but since there is no confining tour schedule, the traveler is free to plan his day however he wishes.

Most frequently a "package" is put together by an established tour operator in cooperation with a group of hotels, an arrangement that often results in lower price and better service, since the operator is negotiating on a volume basis. Nevertheless, the traveler should exercise care in selecting a "package." One guide is to make certain that the tour operator is reliable, and a familiar name in the travel industry.

Next, check over the extra features carefully. For instance, in the American Express Ft. Lauderdale package, there is no extra charge for a child sharing a room with his parents. Obviously this is a better buy for family groups. In all American Express packages – there is one for most of the country's popular locations – there is a variety of hotels to choose from, with price based upon the hotel selected and the type of accommodation.

Finally, estimate the cost of meals for yourself or your family since this is the one major item that most packages do not include. Your travel agent will be glad to help you make this estimate. This way you can determine whether the combined cost of the package plus meals gives you a better deal than a hotel reservation on the Modified American Plan (breakfast and lunch or dinner).

Volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed now for the Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center, which is enrolling for its next training course that will begin soon.

Dr. Thor Krogh, executive director, emphasizes that interested persons are trained effectively to respond on crisis calls.

This service is county-wide and volunteers are sought from all areas. Military personnel and their families, as well as college students, are urged to take advantage of training for this vital community service. Details may be obtained by phoning 624-1415 at any hour of day or night.

CV Road repair plans set; work to be finished Sep. 1

Supervisor Willard Branson has announced that the plans for the repair of the Carmel Valley Road near Miramonte Road have received approval by the State Division of Highways and the Bureau of Public Roads will advertise the project for bids for construction on Jan. 19, 1970.

The project provides, in lieu of repairing the existing roadway, a new alignment be constructed which generally parallels the river channel and would improve the alignment and grade. This new alignment will avoid several problem areas that would be encountered if the existing facility were to be repaired in place. These problems include:

1) Possible disruption or relocation of the 30-inch water main which provides service to the Monterey Peninsula. This water main currently is located under the present Carmel Valley Road detour and adjacent to the section of roadway that has slipped out.

2) Handling of construction zone traffic in the limited work area adjacent to the section that has slipped out.

3) The correction of subsurface drainage problems consisting of several springs that were instrumental in causing the present damage.

On Sep. 10, a public hearing was held at the Carmel Valley Community Center where all facets of this project were reviewed with numerous members of the Carmel Valley community.

The total project is estimated to cost in the range of $576,000 including engineering and right of way costs. The State-Federal Storm Damage Funds participation will amount to approximately $420,000 of the total cost.

Bids will be received on Feb. 5, at 2 p.m. in the office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors. It is anticipated that the Board of Supervisors will award the bid on Feb. 10, with construction starting soon thereafter and project completion approximately Sep. 1.

Wood sponsors live wild animal bill

Assemblyman Bob Wood (R-Greenfield) at the request of the Department of Fish and Game today introduced legislation that would make it unlawful to capture any live, wild game mammal, game bird, or protected nongame bird, or to possess or confine any live game mammal, game bird, or protected nongame bird taken from the wild.

Wood stated, "There is no section in the Fish and Game Code which clearly outlines the prohibition against taking live game birds, game mammals, or protected nongame birds from the wild and then holding such animals in captivity."

The Assemblyman further stated that in many cases a person might feel that he is helping some fawn or other game mammal or bird, when in reality this person is creating a diservice because in most cases these same wild creatures to Mother Nature must some time in their life span be returned to their natural habitat but because they have lived part of their life in domestic environment it is impossible to readjust, and therefore die of starvation or are destroyed by other wild animals.

Wage refund claims

California wage earners who may be entitled to refunds of 1969 disability insurance premium overpayments today were reminded by Gilbert L. Sheffield, Director of the Department of Human Resources Development, that they must file such refund claims by June 30, 1970.

Persons who worked for two or more employers during the year my have had too much deducted because each employer, as required by law, made a withholding for disability insurance.

Wilkinson named new head of Monterey Jazz Festival

The Monterey Jazz Festival has announced results of its annual election of officers for the event's Board of Directors.

Frank Wilkinson, Monterey business executive, one of the Festival's original board members, was elected president. Wilkinson previously has served as vice president and treasurer.

He replaces Melvin J. Isenberger, assistant superintendent for business services of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, who has served as president for the past ten years. Isenberger continues on the board.

Other officers elected at the Festival board meeting were:

Lawrence Bemis, retired U.S. Navy Commander, now Monterey business executive, who was re-elected vice president. He was named to the board in 1966 and previously served as secretary.

James Costello, Monterey newspaper executive, was re-elected secretary. He has served on the board since 1961.

Robert Trenner, retired Monterey assistant Chief of Police, who was elected treasurer. He was named to the board in 1968.

Richard Eldred, Judge of the Pacific Grove Justice Court, was elected director at large. He has been a member of the board since 1962.

Jimmy Lyons, founder of the Monterey Jazz Festival, is the general manager.

Dates of this year's Monterey Jazz Festival, the 13th Annual, are September 18, 19, and 20.

Oliver's observations

By Carl D. Oliver

AFTER NEW YEAR'S, about the only other national holiday we plan on celebrating this year is St. Patrick's Day – it's the only date that we're sure of any more.

One thing that we are sure of, though, is that this new Wearthon by Armstrong, with the exclusive Durabond process, is the greatest indoor-outdoor carpet yet. It comes in 12 different patterns in attractive decorator colors (12 by 12 tiles) and is reuseable from room to room – it's easily installed, easily removed and reinstalled. Yes, you'll always find the latest in everything for the home at H & H Supply, your home improvement center in Seaside at 1449 Canyon Del Rey (corner Del Monte). Monterey Symphony

After listening to the all-Beethoven program given by the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra Tuesday night, Jan. 20, at Sunset Auditorium, one understood why in this, the 200th anniversary of his birth in Bonn, Germany, a year-long commemoration is being celebrated in all parts of Europe and in many parts of the United States. A London dispatch says' "By the end of the year every note the composer wrote will have been played on stages across the continent."

And in Bonn, Beethoven's own piano is being tuned for a performance.

Ludwig Van Beethoven was a giant among composers and he has no peer. His genius is unfathomable and it will endure as long as there is sensitivity and heart response in human nature.

Tuesday night's concert did notable homage to Beethoven's 200th birthday and Carmel may be proud of its commemorating contribution. And especially may we be proud of our distinguished conductor, Haymo Taeuber, who unfolded the music in all its grandeur, pathos and nobility.

Jean Casadesus was the soloist of the evening, playing the Concerto No. 5 in E flat Major. Casadesus, the son of two illustrious pianists, Gaby and Robert Casadesus, is a Frenchman who has concertized extensively in Europe and in this country. His playing was polished, technically good at times forceful.

But mostly, it was too well calculated and too academic for this reviewer. It lacked depth and substance and rarely realized the intensity of Beethoven.

The "Eroica" Symphony was heroic indeed and was the great achievement of the evening. Mr. Taeuber, in great form, commanded his players with authority and his sensitivity revealed all the manifold moods of the music and the orchestra responded magnificently. Keeping to a brisk tempo, the First Movement opened with gusto – crisp and biting. In distinct contrast came the gorgeous, rich harmonies of the Funeral March. Slow, sad, intense and profoundly moving, it is a master piece in music composition.

The feathery strokes of the strings introduced the Scherzo and there followed a brass trio beautifully played. The Finale began in a teasing, almost humorous interplay between the different sections; then led to a rollicking ensemble, truly joyous.

The woodwinds, in a beautiful introduciton, were followed by the full orchestra in music that was noble, vital, impressive, grandiose, which ended jubilantly. The audience responded with stamping feet.

Western Opera

A debt of gratitude is due Kurt Herbert Adler, director of the San Francisco Opera to the California Arts Commission and to the Carmel Music Society for bringing to our very door, opera of high calibre.

The Western Opera Theater, produced by the San Francisco Opera, presented two one-act operas, sung in English, happily – "The Medium," by Gian Carlo-Menotti and "Gianni Schicchi," by Puccini, at Sunset Auditorium Friday night.

Let it be said at one that the cast of young singers was exceptional; the orchestra, though small, was excellent and the conductor, Richard Woitach, was highly competent.

The stage settings were convincing, if not elaborate. Particularly effective was the large window at the back of the stage in "The Medium," which was mysterious in half-light, grotesque in design and eerie in bringing forth the medium's subjects from the dead.

And there was humor in the big bed of Gianni Schicchi, especially in its collapsed state at the end of the opera.

"The Medium," a highly dramatic libretto, tells the story of a clairvoyant who divides her time between the bottle and individuals who come to her seances for contact with their dead loved ones. Her quackery comes to a sudden end when, in the dark, she suddenly feels the terror of a hand at her throat.

Menotti's music depicted graphically the story. There were spooky, half-lighted scenes and love scenes most beguiling. There was great tenderness in the lullaby-like duet when Monica comforted Madame Flora, the medium.

Joyce Castle as the Medium was superb, both vocally and histrionically. She made the character come alive; sometimes alarmingly so, in the gruesome episodes. She could be ingratiating, too. How dramatic was her plea, "Oh, God help me and forgive my sins." Joyce Castle is a great actress with a very fine dramatic soprano voice.

Although Toby, the mute, as portrayed by Timothy Nolen had not a note to sing, or a word to say in the entire opera, his acting was so real, so sympathetic that one fell in lofe with him. He had a worthy partner in the charming Carolyn Lewis who sang beautifully the role of Monica, his sweetheart. (How wonderful it was to see handsome, Young people in romantic roles.)

Claudia Lindsey, remembered for her outstanding performance of last year with this oepra company, impressed anew in the role of Mrs. Nolan. Others who distinguished themselves were Shigemi Matsumoto and William Fleck as Mr. and Mrs. Gobineau, the hoodwinked clients. After such gruesome fare as "The Medium" it was refreshing to hear after intermission on the hilarious opera, "Gianni Schicchi." There was comedy in every line and every participant made the most of it.

The title role was sung by Michael Distefano. His resonant baritone voice and his jocular portrayal of that wily old rascal, Gianni Schicchi, who changed the dead man's will to his own account, was a distinct contribution to the success of the opera.

Timothy Nolen again distinguished himself in an inimitable and humorous portrayal of the palsied old Doctor and the stupid Notary. He is a very talented young artist. Joyce Castle revealed anew her rare and versatile talent in the role of Zita. Carolyn Lewis was again a beguiling sweetheart in the role of Loretta and her singing of the famous aria, "Il mio babino caro" delighted the audience. Bruce Brewer was a handsome lover as Rinuccio and his high tenor voice gave pleasure as he sang the Ode to Florence, "Firenze e come un albero fiorito."

The cast of 14 singers was excellent and their diction throughout was admirable.

Aardvark Gallery to exhibit works of Francis Winans

The Aardvark, Carmel Valley's unique art gallery in Bernadelli Square, will preview its February show at an opening party to which the general public is invited this Friday evening, Jan. 30, from 6 to 8 p.m.

New to gallery-goers of this area, the artist is Charles Francis Winans, a thirty year old former resident of the Valley, now living in Pacific Grove, who has gained an international reputation as a graphic designer and illustrator through his work with Mercury Records and various publications including the Kaiser Alumninum News "Children of Change" issue.

The Aardvark presentation will mark Winans' first public one-man show in California, although his work has been exhibited to private organizations and in special showings at museum art events, and is represented in the permanent collection at the Kaiser Center in Oakland.

The current showing includes acrylics, watercolors, drawings, and reproductions.

Tryouts for NPS production of 'Brigadoon'

The Naval Postgraduate School Little Theater is proud to announce the selection of "Brigadoon" by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe as their spring musical to be presented on April 17, 18, 24, and 25.

Tryouts have been set for 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 1; and 8 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday, Feb. 2, 3, and 5 in King Hall auditorium on the school campus.

"Brigadoon," called by its authors "a whimsical musical fantasy," is a magic village in Scotland which comes to life for only a day each century. This production delighted theatregoers on Broadway for more than 580 performances.

The cast includes 15 speaking roles as well as a 24 member chorus and 20 dancers. A large production staff will also be needed. Anyone interested in any phase of the theater is urged to attend tryouts. Experience is not a requirement.

A program of interest to color slide enthusiasts, arranged by chairman Galyn Hammond of Monterey, will follow the judging.

The club welcomes to the meetings anyone interested in seeing a good showing of color slides and membership is open to those wishing to broaden and promote their interest in color photography.

Local American-Scandinavian Foundation Chapter forms

An organizational meeting for the formation of a Monterey Chapter of the American-Scandinavian Foundation will be held Sunday, Feb. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Auditorium of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, 425 Van Buren Street, Monterey.

All persons interested in promoting better cultural relations between the United States and the Scandinavian countries are welcome.

Established in 1910, the American-Scandinavian Foundation has for 60 years been dedicated to the advancement of cultural and intellectual relations between this nation and the five Nordic countries, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden.

Its objectives are to foster an interchange of students, teachers, lecturers and publications for studies in art, music and the sciences between the United States and Scandinavia.

Langauge studies and cultural programs available in Scandinavia are reviewed and publicized in the monthly bulletin, SCAN, for the benefit of members and interested travelers.

The formation of a Chapter on the Monterey Peninsula should be of special interest to those of Scandinavian descent or those born in any of the five Nordic countries.

The February meeting is an open meeting and all are welcome. For further information write Mr.s John P. Beahan, Box 4104, Carmel, or call 624-2838.

Sanitary District kills Carmel Citizens' group request for hike in bond issue

By GUNNAR NORBERG

It's highly unusual for independently organized citizen groups to ask public taxing bodies to increase the size of proposed bond issues, but that was what the board of directors of the Carmel Citizens' Committee last week asked the Carmel Sanitary Board to do.

At the end of a long meeting in which the views of both the Citizens' Committee group and Sanitary Board members, as well as those of the public generally, were heard, President J. Wentworth Lewis of the Sanitary Board heard a preliminary motion made by Board Member H. R. Fonseca to cancel an earlier Board decision which called for a one-and-a-half-million-dollar bond issue to make way for a two-and-a-half-million dollar one. After a puase, during which none of the other Sanitary Board members, seconded Fonseca's motion, Lewis adjourned the meeting which, at times, had produced heated comment.

The original Sanitary Board decision — to call for a vote on a $1,500,000 bond, Mar. 24 — therefore still stands. (Sanitary Board members, in addition to Lewis and Fonseca, are Harold Arnot, W. I. Shepard, and James Pruitt).

While Sanitary Board President Lewis said he believed "we would be within reach of our goals" if a one-and-a-half-million dollar bond issue should be approved by voters in March, the Citizens' Committe group expressed "grave doubts . . . that the proposed financing is adeuqte for providing the planned and necessary facilities.."

In its letter, the Citizens' Committee had expressed the view that financing would fall short by a sum of some $800,000 and that that sum "would have to come from a Federal grant of from a sizeable increase in the local tax rate."

Or — as the Citizens' group had suggested — by an increase in the March bond issue from one-and-a-half to two-and-a-half million dollars.

Nearly three-and-a-third million dollars was the price-tag mentioned in the Citizens' Committee letter, and this sum was one mentioned in a study filed last month with the Sanitary Board by its consultants, Kennedy Engineers.

This sum was one which it was stated would provide for what is called "primary treatment" of up to four million gallons per day (MGD) and for "secondary treatment" of half that amount.

Assuming that the Sanitary Board could apply $400,000 from its own funds and that it could count on $600,000 from the new Pebble Beach Sanitary District, and that it could add another $1,500,000 following a favorable bond vote for such an amount, the total amount available to meet the three-and-a-third million cost-figure, would become $2,500,000. s

Not enough, therefore, by the sum of $800,000, according to the Citizens' Committee board (which was scheduled, by the way, to bri up this same Sanitary Board bond question before the annual meeting of its membership, which was held last night — as the PINE CONE was going to press — at the All Saints' Church parish hall).

There was considerable question as to the degree of pollution that exists in the near-shore waters between the State's Carmel River Lagoon Beach and its San Jose Creek Beach, and also the proportion of such pollution which could be attributed to the effluent from the Carmel Sanitary District outfall, located south of the Carmel River mouth.

It is that beach area — south of the Carmel River mouth and southward to San Jose Creek — which has been posted because of pollution. The posting was done by the Monterey County Health Department last September 16th.

Two months later tests were made of pollutant content of near-shore waters by the Health department, and last December 12th the Central Caost Water Quality Control Board issued 'cease-and-desist' orders not only to the Carmel Sanitary District, but to other sanitation control bodies in the Monterey Peninsula area. Meanwhile new tests are to be made in February according to Walter Wong, supervising sanitarian of Monterey County, of the state of pollutant content in the same offshore waters which were tested last November, following the original pollutant check back in September.

The coming February tests will be more detailed than the earlier ones, as the State's mobile laboratory will be here in the areas involved, and State sanitary engineers will be placed at all local sanitation plants to check conditions there.

Data gathered will be analyzed at the Moss Landing Marine Laboratories, which are a part of the state college system.

The most frequently heard term in the measurement of pollution in the off-shore bacteria in the area tested. A test measure of 20% or less, is considered an acceptable one by health authorities.

On the same coliform scale, the percentage found south of the Carmel River mouth last September was 39% and in November, 47% according to Wong. Meahwhile the coliform count off Mounterey rose from 58% in September to 80% in November, and off Seaside it dropped form 51% to 37%.

In addition to the basic coliform index, County Health Department personnel used fecal coliform, dissolved oxygen, and temperature tests. Besides those, state sanitary engineers next month will apply tests for settleable and suspended solids as well as total soilds in the effluent, and also those for biochemical oxygen demand, grease, alkilinity and acidyt, mineral compounds, and those showing proportions of chlorine used in the chlorinators.

A key factor in all of the current concern about the degree of pollution that may exist at any one time and in any one place — such as the off-shore waters between the two state-owned beaches, south of the City of Carmel — is just what should be done, what can be done, and what must be done, to reduce such pollution?

What should be done, of course, is to eliminate water pollution wherever it occurs.

What can be done depends upon funds which are available to responsible local sanitary bodies — such as the Carmel Sanitary District Board — or which can be made available through bond elections, by increased local taxation, or from Federal grants.

What must be done now depends on decisions of a regional body — the central Coast Water Quality Control Board — which has issued a "cease-and-desist" order to various sanitation groups, such as the Carmel Sanitary District.

Asked about a likely course of action by the Water Quality boards, County Supervising Sanitarian Wong pointed out that he could, of course, not prognosticate. He said, however, that the basic demand of the Water Quality Control Board in any given situation, no doubt would involve presentation of plans or outlining of a course of action by a local sanitation authority, which would lead to elimination of the pollution against which "cease-and-desist" orders had been issued.

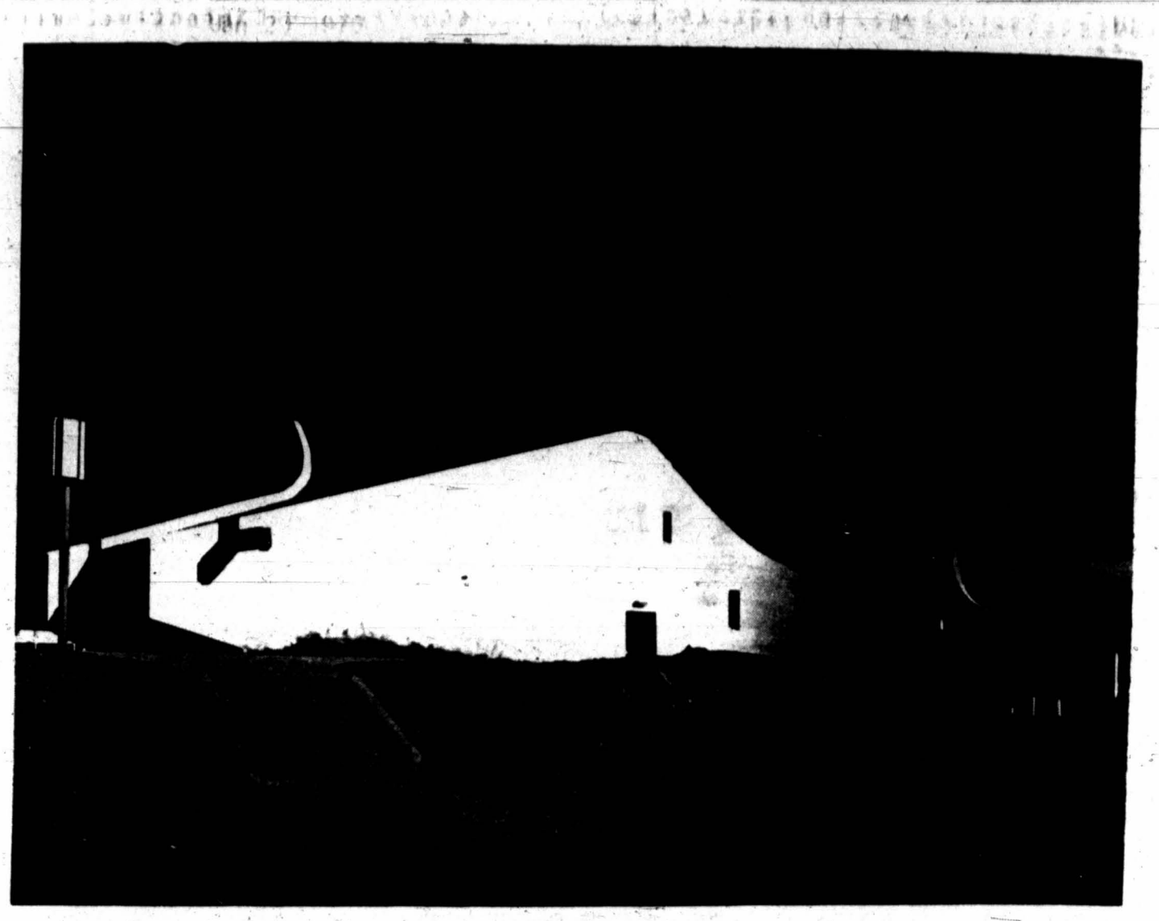
The impression gained at last week's long Carmel Sanitary Board meeting was that that Board felt it had a plan and program — which included theone-a nd-a-half million bond election Mar. 24 — which would lead to improvements which would not only satisfy the regional Water Quality control board but also the forseeable requirements of people residigin in the area served by the Carmel Sanitary District.

That Carmel Citizens' Committee board members did not accept this view — without a million-dollar increase in the coming bond-election figure — was also evident at the same meeting.

Sanitary Board members — particularly Lewis and Arnot — emphasized the need to hold the line on all types of taxation, in a time of rampant inflation and of increasing property taxation, particularly in an area such as this where a large proportion of the population lives on fixed retirement income.

Since much of the prognostication upon which figures are based depend upon future imponderables of population adn population types and trends, much of what is considered, depends on events which are still some distance in the future.

Meanwhile, all of the individuals and groups involved, appear to have one goal in common — the ending of any existing pollution and the anticipation of means to prevent pollution in the future.



PRIZE WINNER

MPC Lecture-forum wins design prize

Monterey Peninsula College's lecture-forum, designed by Fred Keeble and George Rhoda, Monterey architects, has been selected as one of 16 winners in a college building design competition sponsored by College and University Business, a national magazine published in Chicago.

The MPC building, selected from more than 300 nominated for the competition, was one of three winners in a "classrooms" category.

The lecture-forum, which was completed in September, 1968, is mentioned as follows in College and University Business:

"To provide a facility that would allow visual and audio materials to be presented easily to large groups of students, the architects designed a freely sweeping structure which provides three lecture halls of varying seating capacity — all located around one multimedia preparation and projection core.

"The building is constructed of poured-in-place concrete walls textured by use of resawn, square-edged form boards. A cedar shake roof widens as it reaches its peak.

"Within the 14,000 square foot forum, walls are of acoustically treated exposed concrete."

State School Board adopts new moral guidelines not binding on districts

by Emily Brown

Carmel schools are not legally bound to accept the new and controversial moral "Guidelines" which the State Board of Education adopted at a tension-filled meeting in Los Angeles last week.

Although existing law does require teachers to impress on pupils the principles of morality, truth, justice, patriotism and rights and duties of citizenship, the 9-page "Guidelines for the Education of Responsible Citizens in the Public Schools of California" are designated a "commentary" on this legality.

Booing, placard-carrying opponents of the moderate, compromoise report interrupted the meeting, their principal target the Rev. Donn Moomaw, board member and chairman of the widely representative 12-member committee which developed the guidelines.

Its critics preferred a 74-page set compiled by a committee headed by Dr. Edwin F. Klotz of the State Department of Education and appointed by State Superintendent Max Rafferty. Accepted but not adopted by the board last May, Klotz' "Guidelines for Moral Instruction in California Schools" became the subject of statewide controversy.

Opponents of the Klotz Recommendations claim they were biased toward fundamental Protestant religious and political philosophy and criticized the United Nations, the U.S. Supreme Court and Humanists.

However, the board ruled that the Klotz guidelines are to be included in bibliographical material cited in curricular and teaching programs to implement the accepted guidelines. An advisory committee will develop such a program to be recommended to local school districts and colleges.

The board also approved two amendments suggested by State Sen. John L. Harmer (R-Glendale) of the Klotz committee.

Harmer claimed the Moomaw report does not go far enough to meet the challenge of reaffirming the country's moral and immorality and unpatriotic destrictive behavior in the schools.

Others criticized the "Guidelines" for failing to fulfill the board's charge to "identify those principles of morality established by tradition and heritage as well as enforced by laws."

Dr. David Hubbard, one of the principal authors of the document, says it attempts "to represent the citizens of all the state rather than any one faction or point of view."

Non-voting student board member, Barbara Marshment, urged adoption of the Moomaw committee guidelines, and criticized demonstrators in the audience. She pointed out that the approved guidelines "enforce and encourage the rights of all the citizens to hold their own beliefs."

Div. of Hiways to convert vehicles to natural gas

An additional 150 vehicles of the California Division of Highways will be converted to the natural gas fuel system this year as a further step toward reducing air pollution.

In a report to the California Highway Commission James A. Moe, State Director of Public Works, said that 125 State vehicles will be converted to compressed natural gas and 25 will be converted to liquid natural gas. The first 100 vehicles will be assigned to the Los Angeles area and 25 will be situated in either Sacramento or San Francisco.

State bans 35 pesticides

Thirty-five chemical pestisides were prohibited for further use by the State Department of Public Works.

The list spans more than 50 years of pesticide development for DDT and other modern day chemicals are named along with Paris Green, a copper arsenite insectiside popular in 1920.

Moe identified the Division of Highways as the Department's primary user of pesticides. The potent chemicals have proved effective in controlliing weeds and harmful insects along the sides of the approximate 15,000 mile State highway system. They meet the same purposes in the 10,000 acres the Division has devoted to either landscaping or functional plantings.

Moe declared that no slowdown in pesticide control along the highways is anticipated from today's action but said less persistent chemicals will be employed in achieving that end.

All requisitions for pesticides are reviewed in Sacramento by two landscape specialists who check to make sure that only the safest materials are purchased.

If a permit is required before a pesticide can be purchased, the permit is written in the name of the individual employee to be held responsible for the safe application of the chemical.

Monterey Bishop Clinch warns on Garabandal apparitions

Lectures being given in the Monterey area on allged apparitions of the Virgin Mary in Spain have been officially discredited by the Most Reverend Harry A. Clinch, Bishop of Monterey.

Speaking of a lecture scheduled for Friday evening in the agriculture building at the Monterey Fairgrounds, a Pastoral Office spokesman issued the following statement.

"The ban on Marian devotions at Garabandal, the site of alleged apparitions of the Virgin Mary, was upheld by recently installed Bishop Jose Cirada Lachiondo of Santander, Spain. The report of three girls that they had seen the Virgin Mary there seven years earlier was rejected by ecclesiastical authorities as "an innocent children's game" after hearings held by then Bishop Vicente Puchol of Santander shortly after the allged apparitions. The girls failed to produce convincing proof of the vision.

When questioned about the status of the group which is sponsoring the local lectures, Bishop Clinch's office commented that "the Monterey branch of the Saint Michael Garabandal Center of Our Lady of Mount Carmel is a purely private organization and in no way does it have the approval of the Church. Catholics are stronly urged to not participate in activities of this type."

Nigeria confirms CARE as approved Biafrian agency

The recognition previously given to CARE by the Federal Government of Nigeria remains in force, and CARE is among the international relief organizations authorized to assist in helping the Biafran war victims.

This fact was confirmed in a cable received today at CARE headquarters from its mission chief in Lagos. The cable also pointed out the agency is officially listed as a member of the Nigerian Natinoal Advisory Committee on Voluntary Agencies.

In addition, the mission chief cabled that the National Commission for Rehabilitation "gratefully accepts" $645,000 worth of supplies, from stocks CARE offered for emergency distribution immediately after the Biafran surrender.

The shipment will include 1,800,000 vitamin tablets, 75,000 cases of baby food, 12,800 cartons of breakfast food and 100,000 lbs. of a fortified food product given to U.S. Astronauts.

Further specific relief and rehabilitation needs are being ascertained with Nigerian officials by five CARE staff men based in Lagos, Calabar, and Enugu.

A "Nigeria Emergency Fund" has been established for contributions to help the war victims. The Regional CARE Office serving Northern California, Nevada, and Utah is located at 444 Market St., San Francisco 94111.

Christian Science Bible Lesson

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Christian Science churches this Sunday. The public is welcome to attend services, which are held at 11:00 a.m. and 5 p.m. at First Church of Christ, Scientist – 6th and Monte Verde, Carmel.

A Bible passage in the Lesson-Sermon is from Romans: "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

One of the citations from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "Human theories are helpless to make man harmonious or immortal, since he is so already, according to Christian Science. Our only need is to know this and reduce to practice the real man's divine Principle, Love" (p.490).

Christian Science Radio Program

"What Are Our Real Qualifications?" is the title of this Sunday's program in the Christian Science radio series "The Bible Speaks to You," which will be broadcast over stations KGO at 7:15, KRML at 7:45 and KDON at 8:45.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND YOU

By: Raymond MacDonald

Q. Who must file an annual report of earnings?

A. Generally speaking, anyone receiving Social Security benefits who earned over $1,680.00 in 1969 must file an annual report of their earnings with the Social Security Administration.

Q. Is there anyone who does not have to make a report even though they have earned over $1,680.00 in 1969?

A. Those persons over age 72 in all months of 1969 do not make a report regardless of their total earnings. Also, a beneficiary is not required to report if his benefits were withheld for all months of the year due to his earnings. If, however, there is any doubt as to whether benefits might be payable for all or part of the year, a report should be made.

Q. Why is it necessary to report to the Social Security Administration the amount of money a person has earned?

A. The Social Security Act provides for benefits to be paid to those persons who have had a reduction of earnings due to the death, disability or retirement of the family breadwinner. Under the Social Security law a person is not considered completely retired if he has earnings in excess of $1,680.00 in any one year. Therefore, a part or all of the Social Security benefits are withheld depending upon the amount of earnings over $1,680.00.

SPCA hails first year in new home as sucess; handled 9,000 animals of all kinds

The first year at the new shelter, La Vega Verde, on the Monterey-Salinas Highway was highly successful.

During the year 9,032 animals were handled, 521 of which were wild animals, 270 were injured domestic animals and 1,058 were strays.

Two hundred and six cruelty cases were investigated by Executive Director Gwen May; the most flagrant of which was the Denning travelling circus case, which was taken to court last April and successfully prosecuted.

The fact that 2,856 dogs and 4,288 cats were brought to the Animal Shelter during the past year is further and positive indication that people must be educated in animal welfare and have their pets sprayed or neutered so this over-population problem can be corrected.

A trip to the Shelter is a rewarding experience to see how well the animals are being cared for by the most efficient and dedicated staff. We are just across from Laguna Seca Racetrack and the Shelter is open every day except Thursday and Sunday.

All Saints' Activities

A series of neighborhood "Evening With the Rector," now underway through All Saint's Episcopal Church are designed to let members meet each other and discuss the life of the parish.

The parish is divided into 10 neighborhoods with a vestryman responsible for each. A meeting in each is planned before the beginning of Lent on Feb. 11.

Election of four vestrymen and news on additional building at the Episcopal Day School will be on the agenda of All Saints' Church's annual parish meeting, following services on Feb. 1, the Rector, David Hill, announced.

The Sunday meeting of the congregation will begin with a Festival Eucharist at 10 a.m. in the parish hall, where coffee and rolls will be served.

Also to be elected at this time will be seven delegates and alternates to the diocesan convention in October, and who also will serve as parish delegates to deanery convocations.

Reports from various parish organizations will be presented, along with 1970 goals. Other items for the agenda should be given to Father Hill who, by canon law, will preside at the meeting.

Bells are known to have been used as musical instruments in China as early as 800 B.C.

Do you want to believe in God?

You can. Not just because of what someone says about God. But because of what you yourself can learn and prove about divine Love.

Like the woman who was instantly freed by an assailant one night – when she turned to God in prayer. Or the entertainer whose back was healed through prayer after he was told he couldn't walk without surgery.

These individuals found that divine Love meets even the most challenging human needs . . . that powerful spiritual laws are available for anyone to use.

You can learn more of these laws by reading this week's Bible Lesson.

Norberg speculates on what makes a city councilman

by GUNNAR NORBERG

Who, then, are the suitable candidates?

They should be intelligent, well-informed people, and they should have a special fondness for, and an intimate understanding of, the extraordinary city which the world still recognizes Carnel to be.

They should be able and willing to think out solutions to problems which the City has to face, and they should understand the importance of answers to such special problems as Carmel must face because it is significantly different from most other towns in America.

There is perhaps no better simple creed to guide the thoughs of any would-be city councilman, than that contained in the preamble to Carmel's zoning law, which became a part of the city's municipal code back in 1929, and has remained there ever since as a cornerstone for all its city planning effort.

"The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is hereby determined to be primarily, essentially, and predominantly a residential city wherein business and commerce have in the past, are now, and are proposed to be in the future, subordinated to its residential character . . ."

A son of the attorney who wrote those words is one of many notable men who have actually served as Carmel city councilmen. That son is present Monterey County Superior Court Judge Gordon Campbell.

And here it must always be remembered that Carmel isn't just a residential community of the usual surburban kind. In fact, if Carmel were to be considered as any kind of suburb at all, it could properly only be a suburb of the world, for its people are truly drawn not merely from all parts of the United States, but from all parts of the world.

At various times in years past, the people of Carmel have actually thought of their way of life as being so different from all others that serious talk of building walls around Carmel have been heard, and playful reference has even been made to the thought that Carmel should properly be a separate state of the Union!

With such a view and such a tradition, is it any wonder that the kind of individual who should sit on the Carmel City Council ought actually to be a truly unfettered individualist in a world where fewer and fewer such persons seem to survive!

Dedicated Carmelites — whether newly come or long resident — must see to it that such individuals become candidates for, and are elected to, their City Council, if the name and fame of Carmel are long to survive in today's and tomorrow's world.

In addition to the two City Council positions, voters in April will also be asked to express their view as to whether the positions of City Clerk and of City Treasurer should, or should not, continue to be subject to election. In many cities, these positions are appointive. It will be up to voters on April 13 to decide whether or not they should become appointive here.

Frequently — through the years — there has been discussion about whether or not the voters should decide who is to act as mayor of Carmel. Voters could also be asked on the ballot in April, whether or not they wish to elect a mayor, or whether they want to continue the present system in which members of the Council decide which one of them is to occupy the post of mayor.

Some years ago, such a question was placed on the ballot in Seaside, and voters there — as in many other cities — decided that they wanted to elect a mayor instead of leaving that decision up to their city councilmen.

If you should wish to have this issue on the ballot contact your present city councilmen, and come to the next regular City Council meeting — Feb. 4 — the last date on which issues to be voted upon by the people can be placed on the municipal ballot.

Members of the City Council, in addition to Blanks and Brown, are: Mayor Barney Laiolo and Councilmen Eben Whittlesey and Frank Falge.

The Pine Cone hopes that the City Council will place the question of taking over the Carmel Museum of Art on next April's ballot at the Feb. 4 meeting so that voters may be in a position to advise the Council on that important matter.

Army seeks dental trainees

The United States Army is offering guaranteed training in dental career fields to qualified enlistees. The training is open to both men and women.

The two courses offered are the Dental Specialist Course and the Dental Laboratory Procedure Course, both taken by the enlistee at the Army Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, following eight weeks of basic training.

The Dental Specialist Course, lasting eight weeks, teaches dental assistance, operation and care of dental equipment and clinical and x-ray processes. Students also learn to identify and describe instruments and equipment, and to prepare instrument setups for various clinical procedures.

The 16 week Dental Laboratory Procedure Course teaches basic dental laboratory techniques. During this course, students learn to fabricate dentures and prosthetic devices. They also learn to reline, rebase and repair complete dentures.

Following the completion of either course, the enlistee will be assigned to duty at one of hundreds of Army medical facilities in the United States and overseas.

For more information about Army dental career fields or other Army courses, interested persons should contact Sergeant Jose Garcia at 372-4742.

Henry Still to discuss future of man in lecture Jan. 30

Henry Still, a journalist and public relations practitioner who is so concerned with the survival of the humar race that he has written and published several books on the subject, will speak at Monterey Peninsula College Friday, Jan. 30, on "Man: The Next Thirty Years."

His lecture, co-sponsored by MPC's community services office and the American Association of University Women, Monterey Peninsula Branch, will start at 8 p.m. in Lecture-Forum 103. The event is open to the public without charge.

Of his lecture, Still has said: "I quite agree that hand-wringing is useless on the environmental question, which now has entered the political arena. I'll certainly have some suggestions for future solutions, although some are far out.

"My main theme is virtually no one is thinking far enough into the future as we tackle the problem, and that some bold new approaches are necessary."

One of Still's "far out" solutions — colonizing the moon — is proposed in his most recent book, "Man: The Next Thirty Years." Others are explored in "Will the Human Race Survive?" (1966) and "The Dirty Animal" (1967).

A native of Iowa, Still graduated from the University of Iowa in 1942 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. He held part-time newspaper jobs during high school and college, and after World War II — during which he had three years of battleship duty in the Pacific Theater — he spent one year as a reporter on the San Francisco News. In 1947 he returned to Iowa City as city editor of the Iowa City Press Citizen. In 1952, he moved to the Rocky Mountain News, Denver, Colorado.

He entered the public relations field in 1960 and is now assistant director of public relations for the Northrup Corporation.

Tomlinson's Tidbits

By George L. Tomlinson

STATISTICS SHOW that a man hardly ever makes the same mistakes twice — usually it's three times or more.

You certainly won't be making any mistake if you're smart enough to review your insurance coverage periodically. What you considered adequate coverage a year ago may be entirely inadequate today. A good place to come for wise counseling in all insurance matters is "the office with the red carpet service," George L. Tomlinson, Suite 1 (upstairs), Las Tiendas Bldg., in the heart of Carmel. Don't delay, come in today. Tomorrow could be a day too late. Phone 624-6456. "It's time to see Tomlinson."

James Mason as the writer Trigorin in "The Seagull."

'The Seagull,' Chekhov's classic at Village Feb. 4-5

The first showing on the Monterey Peninsula of the film version of the Anton Chekhov classic "The Seagull" will be presented at Carmel's Village Theater in a special showing on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 4 and 5.

In this Sidney Lumet production Chekhov is being put on the screen in pure form in the English language for the first time.

A new translation by Baroness Moura Budberg of the Russian play was commissioned by Lumet after he had seen her version of "The Three Sisters" in London a few years ago.

The translation is still undiluted and unaltered Chekhov and gives in his clear and simple style a perceptive picture of Russian society at the time.

It is awash with the loneliness, pessimism, destruction, frustration and even humor which all characterized his people and his period.

The cast includes James Mason, Vanessa Redgrave, Simone Signoret and David Warner.

Special group discount rates are available by contacting Lynn Pearson or Tom Graff at 624-5740.

'Seven Year Itch' comedy hit next at Studio Feb. 6

Opening Feb. 6 at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel is the all-time comedy favorite "The Seven Year Itch."

Its hero is a reasonably average type whose reasonably happy marriage of seven years suffers a crisis when his wife leaves him alone in their apartment for the summer and a delectable young neighbor appears on the scene.

All at once Richard Sherman realizes that life is slipping by and he may never experience any of the romantic interludes summoned up by his imagination in various dream sequences that run through the action. The girl upstairs becomes an irresistible mixture of temptation and opportunity against which his conscience struggles heroically, hilariously and vainly.

Extricating himself from the situation then preys on his mind as much as getting into it as he visualizes his wife discovering all and taking a terrible reprisal in one of the funniest dream sequences in the play.

Written by George Axelrod, "The Seven Year Itch" established Tom Ewell as one of Broadway's foremost comedians during its three year New York run. He was equally acclaimed in the subsequent movie which gave Marilyn Monroe an outstanding comic role as the girl.

Under the direction of Bill Asp, "The Seven Year Itch" will play Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights at the Studio from Feb. 6 through mid-March.

Movie Review

Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice – An irreverent social satire, slick in its trimmings and backgrounds with a sharp bite in its characters, dialogue and frank appraisal of modern marriage and mores. Golden Bough.

The Secret of Santa Vittoria – Anthony Quinn and Anna Magnani are an unbeatable combination. In this story of World War II, Quinn and the villagers of a little Italian town cope with Nazi intruders who want to confiscate their treasured wine. At the Steinbeck.

The Undefeated – Two of Holywood's most popular stars, John Wayne and Rock Hudson team up for the first time in this action packed Western of the post-Civil War period. Wayne is a Northerner, Hudson a Southerner. At the Village.

If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium – This is a fictional account of the adventures of a busload of tourists on a whirlwind jaunt through Europe. Great photogrpahy of Europe's great attractions. At the Valley Cinema.

Stage Review

Cactus Flower – Bill Asp's smooth direction keeps the pace of this Abe Burrows classic going at top speed at the Studio Theater-Restaurant. The play is artfully acted and cleverly staged and offers the broadest kind of farce in its 15 scenes. Cactus Flower plays weekends at 8:30 on Friday and Saturday, 7:30 on Sunday. Outstanding dinner served prior to stage production.

Light Up The Sky – A hilarious look at the inside of show business in Moss Hart's funniest comedy to date. This is a satire on the foibles, hang ups and mores of those who people the theater. Directed by Zelma Weinfield, Light Up The Sky is the story of a play having its try-out in Boston prior to opening in Broadway. Playing weekends at the Circle Theater, with curtains at 8:30 on Friday and Saturday, one hour earlier on Sunday.

Gone With the Wind – Considered the greatest motion picture of all time. Clark Gable, Vivian Leigh star in the film production of Margaret Mitchell's epic novel of the south during the Civil War. At Cinema 70 in 70 milimeter and stereophonic sound until Feb. 6.

The Arrangement – Elia Kazan's production of his own roughly autobiographical novel. Kirk Douglas, Deborah Kerr, Faye Dunaway and Richard Boone, who, incidentally, almost steals the whole thing as a Greek father figure. At the State.

All the Loving Couples – Hotsy-totsy stuff about an octet broken down into four couples who experiment with wife swaping. For a sex film it is not too bad an example of the genre. At the Hill.

Barbarella – Jane Fonda. The yar 40,000. Sex. Death-rays. Marcel Marceau. Tongue-in-cheek direction. John Phillip Law. Hairbreadth escapes from death. A fate-worse-than-death is welcomed. At the Marina Automovie.

Popi – Alan Arkin is the father of two youngsters growing up in New York's Puerto Rican colony. He fights for their right to grow up as humans in this warm comedy. At the Village.

PARTY PLANS . . .

Suikiyaki

Looking forward to Expo 70 in Japan, it is interesting to realize that the great contribution of the Japanese to the world of cooking is their beautiful presentation of food.

Believing that the eye feasts before the tongue, each sliver of vegetable, each slice of meat is carefully arranged to present an artistic picture.

Cooking time of fresh vegetables is brief as possible, to retain the shape, bright color and crispness so essential to please one's palate. These should resemble a spray of blossoms, to the eye at least.

The finesse of Japanese chefs is best displayed in their national favorite Sukiyaki which also means Friendship Dish, or more literally "cooking-in-a-pot at the table" with everyone participating. These dishes of vegetables, broth and meat or seafood are traditionally prepared in skillet or casserole on a cooking unit, hibachi or electric stove right in front of everybody in the dining room, while guests (and hosts) admire and grow hungrier by the minute.

Actually, this ancient form of cooking fits perfectly into our contemporary way of living with chafing dish or automatic skillet replacing the Oriental burner. Beef or Shrimp Sukiyaki can be prepared at the table and served with flair over heaping bowls of steaming white rice.

Minute rice will help you here, since it is prepared without boiling or pot-watching, an advantage when you by yourself prepare a last minute entree like the delicate but filling Sukiyaki.

Set the mood for your Japanese party by first presenting Sushi Squares, tiny rice cakes flavored with seafood or anchovies. And if you want to still further pamper your guests with Oriental luxury, pass a tray of moist, warm small napkins (terry cloth are best) scented with cologne to wipe fingers (and face) after the rice-cake-saki spree.

This is done in the finest restaurants of Kyoto and Tokyo, and of course in the hospitable homes of Japanese hosts.

Sushi Squares

One and a third cups water; 1 T., each, freshly grated horseradish; 1 T. butter; ¾ t. salt; dash of pepper; 1-1/3 cups packaged enriched pre-cooked rice; 1 cup (½ pt.) sour cream; 2 T., each, finely chopped anchovies and ripe olives; or use ½ cup finely chopped canned shrimp (not mashed) and finely chopped ripe olives.

Combine water, horseradish, butter, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil. Then stir in rice. Cover, remove from heat, and let stand 5 minutes. Cool slightly, then stir in sour cream. Add remaining ingredients.

Press mixture into an oiled 8-inch square pan. Cover with wax paper or plastic wrap and chill thoroughly. Cut into small squares to serve as appetizers. Garnish each square with a dab of sour cream and an olive slice or sprig of parsley. Makes 36 appetizers.

Sukiyaki Expo 70

Two cups water; speck of seasoned salt; 1 T. butter; 2 cups packaged enriched pre-cooked rice; 2 T. more butter, soy bean or peanut oil; 1 lb. lean round steak, cut in very thin slices; ½ lb. fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced, (about 3 cups) 1 bunch scallions or green Spring onions, cut into short strips, (about 2 cups); 1 cup green celery heart strips; 1 cup sliced yellow onions; 1 can (5 oz.) bamboo shoots, drained; 2 T. granulated white sugar; 1/3 cup Kikkoman Japanese soya sauce; 1 beef bouillon cube; ¼ cup hot water, 3 cups fresh washed spinach leaves.

Bring 2 cups water, the salt and 1 T. butter to a boil. Stir in rice. Cover, remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork before serving. Keep hot (in warming oven).

Meanwhile, heat 2 T. butter or oil (not olive oil) in large heavy skillet. Add meat and brown very quickly on both sides, takes about 1½ min. Add remaining ingredients excepting the freshly washed spinach which should be patted between paper towels. Simmer uncovered, stirring now and then about 5 min. Vegetables should be almost tender but still definitely crisp.

Then add spinach leaves, cover and cook gently 3 min. longer. You certainly should have a stop watch or a companion who watches over you and the stove at this crucial moment.

Serve over the rice (both kept really hot without burning). Pass extra soy sauce in mini Japanese teapots, the kind children once used for their dolls. Do they now?

The amount given makes 5 cups Sukiyaki, plus rice, or a fair serving for six conservative appetites. But what that saki can do to augment ones hunger!

Carmel is filled with charming Oriental shops and it seems uncouth to serve this delicious dish in anything else but pure Japanese.

Take, for instance, one of our favorite shops . . . Kinji's on Dolores and Ocean. The tiny climb upstairs is well worth your while. So do set your table accordingly. Yes, we are carried away with the pictorial angle . . which does make a lot of difference in an aesthetic sense.

Now here are a few practical notes: For ease of cutting meat, place in freezer until just firm, about 1½ hours, or only partially thaw frozen meat. With a heavy, sharp knife, slice meat very thin; let stand at room temp. (depending on weather) to thaw while preparing other ingredients.

You might substitute 1 lb. raw shelled shrimp cut into good sized pieces for the meat . . or be daring and have a half lb of meat and shrimp,each. The precooked rice is of course not Japanese style as they use only their own long grain rice. But for cooks-in-a-hurry it does a quick job. All one has to do nowadays is to quick-read the labels on packaged rice . . so take the speedy Americanzied way if you prefer.

It just so happens that your Part Plans editor has her own cookbook "Rice & Spice," published in Tokyo, by Charles E. Tuttle and tells everything anyone should know about rice.

Chopsticks are used both for mixing while cooking and for eating the Sukiyaki. Chicken replaces the meat if desired. Just add boned, sliced chicken breasts, Matsutake, the wild mountain mushrooms available in cans from Japan are authentic additions.

Sukiyaki is usually served with a fresh raw egg, beaten with a fork or chopstick, never an egg beater. The egg is placed in individual Japanese rice or bamboo blue and white pattern bowls. Then the hot sukiyaki is dipped into the whipped raw egg before it is consumed. You may use the American Accent instead of the Japanese Ajinomoto to emphasize flavor.

Top off this fine one-dish supper with tangerines, lichee nuts, thin wafers, lemon and orange flavored, or macaroons, whistling sake and/or dry sherry and jasmine or green tea.

You can also go all out and turn your living and dining quarters into an approximation of a Japanese teahouse. Imagine delicate sliding panels, straw matting, low tables where guests must sit crosslegged if they want to dine, which they do at the first whiff of what's cooking on the hibachi. This portable charcoal (or electric) brazier is the heart and the hearth of Japan's social and home life.

The simmering tea kettle is another symbol of their hospitality, as is "whitling sake," the rice wine which is served hot from a whistling tea kettle.

Your guests will surely exclaim: "Gochiso-sama!" (what a great feast!) when the meal is reluctantly terminated.

Planning Commission considers future policy, jurisdictional matters in lengthy session

Much of any city planning commission meeting is necessarily devoted to acting upon issues brought before the body by individuals or groups seeking required approval for specific building plans or proposals, or for some special consideration in connection with such plans or proposals.

However, by definition, such commissions should, of course, concern themselves mainly with broad policy matters to help determine future city policy in the use of business and residential property.

Three items on last week's long Carmel Planning Commission agenda were concerned with questions of future policy, rather than with immediately urgent day-to-day requirements.

First the Commission heard a detailed report by Councilman Herbert Blanks concerning the concept of regional government, and the need for some type of co-operative inter-city and city-county planning in order to deal effectively with matters such as pollution of air and water, which necessarily have widespread effects beyond the boundaries of individual cities and counties.

Perhaps more important generally, however, would be development of a continuing focus by city and county planning bodies upon policy matters within their own jurisdictions which often get little consideration simply because of the burden of regular day-to-day demands which stand in the way of long-range planning for the future.

For example, several years ago, when the then new Monterey Peninsula Area Plan was promulgated, Carmel's city planners made no real objection when the area-wide body decided to label the then new Carmel Rancho development as a "major shopping center," instead of marking it but as merely a "small neighborhood shopping center" which the adopted Carmel City General Plan had identified it as being.

(All cities have the right to consider in their master-planning, what they believe to be proper future uses of land within three miles of their city limits, and the Rancho is well within such a distance of Carmel.)

While Blanks was mainly concerned in his talk with regional aspects of planning, rather than with an individual city's own separate planning, he did point out that city planners sometimes give too little thought to the implementation of adopted city planning policies in their usual day-to-day actions.

The second question of future polciy which came before last week's Planning Commission session concerned a developing third story use of business buildings. The third story use which triggered the question was the establishment of a restaurant in the basement of the Del Dono Court building at the soutwest corner of Dolroes and 5th.

Two-story use of business structures has been the usually accepted rule in Carmel. While there are certain deviations from this rule – generally in business buildings which were built before presently controlling laws were enacted – subterranean developments have rarely been established.

Last week the Planning Commission decided it was time to determine if new legislation to discourage future basement operations should be attempted.

The third possible policy matter on the Commission agenda was so near the end of the lsit, that the Commission decided to postpone consideration on it. That third matter was one called to he attention of the Commission by a recent Pine Cone article which had referred to proposals made long ago, but still undecided, which cuold tighten future controls on the maximum size of business buildings and on the incrase of motels.

In other action, the Planning Commission passed on to the City Council its latest revision of a possible ordinance intended to limit and control the display of merchandise in front of business establishments. The Council had asked the Commission to be more specific in recommending an ordinance, and last week the Commission prposed that outdoor display be limited to "original art work; newspapers and postcard racks; produce; pottery; plant life, including flowers; garden supplies and tools; motor oil at service stations; antiques; straw & wicker objects; and bicycles."

A decision on a request by Dr. Donald Stiff to divide a parcel of land at Monte Verde between 3rd and 4th into two building sites was postponed because the Commission watned to visit the site before reaching its conclusion.

Closer communication between the Commission and the city's Parking & Traffic Committee was proposed, and it was agreed that representatives of both groups would meet with Mayor Barney Laiolo to resolve the matter. To improve communication in a different direction, the Commission decided to meet with the city's Cultural Commission this week to consider a master plan for the city's Sunset Center.

Signs for the following businesses were approved: Hallmark Cards & Gifts; Edith Dinkin Gallery; Penny Howard, Realtor; and for the Standard Oil station on Ocean Avenue.

Report From RLS

by Richard Millard

This easter vacation, the students of the Robert Louis Stevenson School will be offered a unique opportunity. Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Robertson, who came to the school last year, will sponsor their second spring trip to Guatemala. Those students who elect to take part in this outstanding offering will join the Robertsons and seven members of Mrs. Robertson's anthropology class.

Highlights of the crowded itinerary, which begins March 20 with the flight to Guatemala City, include a full day of study at Opan, Honduras; an overnight stay at the unique Maya Inn at Chichicastenago, the highland Maya village to which Maya Indians walk over mountain trails for this Easter week market; a visit to Antigua, a colonial town where Easter festivities and pagentry are events of such major importance that they are being prepared for all year; a bus trip to El Baul, Bilbao, and Monte Alto to see what Dr. PArson and Mr. Shook have uncovered in this second year of the Harvard "dig"; a flight to Tikal, the larges of all Maya cities, where two days will be spent at one of the world's largest "digs" working with the University of Pennsylvnia which has spent twelve years uncovering this ancient city which dates back to 600 B.C.; and, of course, several days to explore the fascinating markets of Guatemala City.

On March 31, the members of the anthropology class will travel on woth Mrs. Robertson. Mr. Robertson, unfortunately, must also return to his classes at this time so he will depart with the other students. The anthropology class will travel up the Pasion River, in dug-out canoes, for two days stopping at Sayaxche, jungle headquarters on the Pasion River; Seibal, where Harvard University has been working five years; and Santa Amelia, where travel will continue up the Machaquila River to Machaquila, a site recently uncovered and relatively unknown, Mrs. Robertson will do rubbings of the important relief carvings uncovered in the area. This project which has taken her to many sites in the Mesoamerican region, has been in progress some five years in conjunction with several universities. The anthropology students, meanwhile, will be engaged with the archeological research presently being conducted at the site for an additional two weeks.

This girl does not need protecting, but she does need a framework within which to judge the actions of other people and their expression on the screen.

The man also refuses to make a moral judgment, but he does apply some general aethetic criteria that deal with the art of movie making.

The attitude of the woman is the most typical and the most confused. She objects to nudity, evidently on moral grounds, yet in the sae breath she suggests that the scene would have been sexier if Vanessa Redgrave had been wearing a slip or a robe. There is a basic dishonesty in her statement that she and so many others like her fail to realize.

Either the scene was sexually stimulating, and therefore unacceptable, or it was not. What she is objecting to is not the sexiness, but the nudity because somewhere in the back of her mind she finds something fearful and disturbing about a nude human being.

Such confused thinking on the subject of sex and nudity is greatly responsible for the state of affairs which has made a rating system necessary. Our Puritan heritage has created such a colossal "hang-up" over nudity and sex that in many cases what the adult generation considers moral protection for the young is really an excuse for protecting themselves from the guilt and fear they feel when faced with the reality of the nude human body.

This is not to say that the rating system is not necessary or worthwhile, but in my opinion it will only serve to maintain an unfortunate status quo unless we as a nation are willing to take an honest look at our attitudes toward nudity and realize that nudity and immorality are not necessarily one and the same thing, that an open and forthright discussion of the human condition with our children is deperately needed if they are to develop healthy moral and critical attitudes, that by imposing restrictions on others because we cannot face our own fears serves only to create the same confusion and turmoil in those we are trying to protect.

Reviews for Young Readers

By Allene Fremier

George's Store, by Frank Asch tickled me so much that we have two copies of it in the library.

It is a black and white picture book and the characters are bold cartoon drawings. The two stars are George, a business man who operates his own store, and george, his dog.

Both George and george guess what each customer wants before he asks for it. George is always right and george is always wrong.

However, one day a lady comes in and just stands there. George starts guessing and cannot guess the item. Finally, when it dawns on him that he is what she wants, he faints.

So they get married (she also has a female dog whom george admires), and continue to mind the store and raise their children. It's lots of fun.

Swamp Spring by Carol and Donald Carrick, who also authored the beautiful picture book, The Brook, is another thought-provoking, mood piece.

It is dedicated "To the conservationists, who hold back the day when swamps exist only in books." The words which accompany the delicate watercolors extend the mood of the illustrations. For example, "Drowned trees stand in a silent wilderness," accompanies a full page drawing of a solitary hawk watching from the top of one of the barren trees.

"In the cover of the dark, the raccoon prods the muddy banks for worms." Another full-page picture of a raccoon looking right at the reader, with his paw gently touching the water. It is as quiet and contemplative as George's Store is loud and blatant. Each has its own merits.

Madaleine L'Engle, the author of the Newberry Award Winner A Wrinkle In Time, has a new book called Prelude. It is the story of 15-year-old Katherine Forrester, who yearns to become a concert pianist, as was her mother.

It is a mature novel, dealing with many aspects of growing up – first love, friendships, understanding an unorthodox home life – as well as the realization of her ambitions in music.

Another good one for the older readers, one which I enjoyed reading myself, is the non-fiction book, The Last Emperor: The Story of Mexico's Fight for Freedom, by Bob and Jan Young.

It begins with an account of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico waiting out his last hours before he falls before a firing squad.

The young commander of the firing squad mumbles an apology to the Emperor, who replies: "You and your men have my forgiveness. You are only doing your duty as soldiers." As he steps back into position, he says: "I die for a just cause, the independence and liberty of Mexico. May my blood seal the misfortunes of my adopted country. Long live Mexico."

THERE'S A BIG-HOME FEELING about this 2-bedroom, 1-bath home located on a cul-de-sac, with a lovely view of the hills from the living room window. The living room and dining area are extra large as is the kitchen, which needs some modernizing. The interior needs a decorator's touch, but only for color and floor covering as no structural changes are necessary. This property is just listed, and the out-of-town owners are very anxious to sell. See it today! $35,000.00.

If You Plan to Build in the 70's Consider Pebble Beach or the Country Club

CAYUSE ROAD
Top location in the Country Club area, level, well drained lot with lovely view of the ocean and Santa Cruz. Walking and easy cart distance to the club. It's in the area where "those in the know" like to live, and $19,000 is a very fair price.

HERMITAGE ROAD
Upper side of Hermitage, beautifully wooded with good possibilities for the ocean view if split level is built. Full set of plans available to buyer. About 2 minutes to the 17th fairway of the Shore Course and 4 minutes to the clubhouse by cart. Only $14,000.

LOS ALTOS
If you wnat a lot with a view of the entire Country Club area and Monterey Bay all the way to Santa Cruz, let us show you a handsome building site for only $15,000. Owners are moving to Mexico and want quick action. All cash is not required and subordination to qualified builder possible.

LOPEZ ROAD
This is a real find in the country club. On Lopez Road with secondary access on Strawberry. Quarter acre, well drained, ready right now to build. Close to club and golf courses. Price $9,800 cash; only a little more on terms.

SUNRIDGE ROAD
Quarter acre with great view over the tree tops toward Pt. Lobos. Best of all, easy access to Carmel and Monterey, and the price is just $15,000.

CYPRESS POINT AREA
A little over two acres in a protected, secluded area with beautiful trees. The fairways of Cypress, one of the loveliest views in Pebble Beach are yours to enjoy, as well as the ocean view around Fan Shell Beach. Price $32,500.

A PAIR OF LOTS ON COLTON
On a wide knoll, guaranteed protection from crowding; beautiful trees, filter view over the forest and the ocean; those are the things the owners fell in love with when they walked in the forest one day with their dog. Now they must go back to Scotland and their lots are available together or separately at just $15,250 each. Especially attractive for gregarious golfers who still want privacy and seclusion on their own lot.
